Department Commanders will meet Comrade Blakeman at the office of the Marshal, 1412 New York Avenue, Washington, D. C., on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, for consultation and orders as to parade and review. Maps will be fur-nished Department Commanders showing the location of their Departments in the formation of the parade.

The parade will take place Wednesday and will move promptly at 10 o'clock a, m.

The line of march will be from the Cap-Itol to Seventeenth Street, just beyond the White House, and will not exceed one and one-half miles in length.

The President of the United States and the Lieutenant-General of the Army have been invited to review the parade with the Commander-in-Chief.

A parade order will be issued at Washington giving full directions as to the formation of the parade.

Elaborate preparations have been made by the citizens of Washington for the entertainment of the veteran and his friends.

Sanday, Oct. 5, patriotic services will be held in many of the churches of Washington

Monday, Oct. 6, Camp Roosevelt will be formally opened at 4:30 p. m. The camp will be located on the White Lot, south of the White House, where all Reunions will be held. In the evening a mammoth Campfire will be held at Convention Hall.
Tuesday, Oct. 7, is Naval Day. There will be a parade of the Naval Veterans' Association, Prisoners of War. Sons of Association, Prisoners of War, Sons of Veterans, and other special Veterans' as-sociatious. Also the Regular Troops, District National Guard, High School Cadets, and other organizations, civic and veterans at t day afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the welcome of the Government of the District of Columbia will be extended to the Grand Army of the Republic and allied Orders. Receptions will be given by the ladies on Wednesday evening, Oct. 7, notice of which will appear on the official bulletins Washington. Concerts, excursions, and brilliant displays of fireworks will be given each day of the Encampment.

As announced in General Orders Nos. 4 and 6, applications for free quarters could only be considered when made through Department Headquarters, as in tarough Department Readquarters, as in said orders particularly set forth. Owing to the large amount of work imposed upon National Headquarters in arranging for free quarters, the Executive Committee decided that no application could be considered after Sept. 1, time and labor being necessary to ranke the preparation de Arthur Hendricks, Past Comnder, Department of the Potomac, and chairman of the Committee on Battlefield Excursions, has made very complete arrangements for the comfort and guidance elds. It is suggested that comrades should organize into parties, as better ar-rangements can be made for eating and ceping accommodations and such other ansportation necessary, aside from that transportation necessary, aside from that furnished by railroads. Railroad accom-modations will be ample, and every effort will be made to transport safely all com-rades who desire to take these trips.

The Committee on Battlefield Excur-sions will arrange for a detail of its members, who will be appropriately designated by badges, and be prepared to give in-formation in regard to trains, time of departure, etc. Members of the committee will also accompany trains to battlefields remote from the city, such as Winchester, Manassas, and Chancellorsville. Vehicles and experienced guides will be on duty at Gettysburg. Fredericksburg. Antietam and Petersburg. It is suggested if par-ties should be organized in advance that they correspond with Comrade Hendricks. 1405 New York Avenue, Washington, D.

By command of ELL TORRANCE, ander-in-Chief. SILAS H. TOWLER, Adjutant-General.

THE PRESIDENT ACCEPTS. The Grand Parade to be Reviewed by Sol-diers of Two Wars.

A few days ago Gen. Torrance, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, addressed a letter to President Roosevelt expressing his desire that the Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States should review the parade. Gen. Torrance said, in part:

"I have the honor to extend to you a most cordial invitation to review with me the annual parade of the Grand Army of the Republic, to take place in Washing-ton, D. C., on Wednesday, Oct. 8 next. "The occasion promises to be one of more than ordinary interest, and surviv-ing veterans of the civil war look forward with unusual satisfaction to the special pleasure it will give them not only to march in review before you, but to have

An effort is now being made to have these concerts continued for two weeks longer to afford Encampment guests an opportunity to attend the concerts in the Capitol Grounds and in the White House Grounds as well.

The High School Cadets, who are uni formed, will probably act as guides and escorts for the visitors in Washington during the National Encampment.

The Capitol is to have a most unique illumination. The great, white, beautiful building crowning the hill is to have four searchlights thrown upon it each night from the four quarters of the compass. This will make it stand out against the sky in a way that would be hard to make one believe that it was not of "the city not built with hands." There is not in the world today a more superbly and classically beautiful building.

They saw his good qualities, and wanted to possess them. But no! He was a Union soldier of the tried and true kind, and he stood by the Star Spangled Banner.

The New York Press: The candidacy of Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief John Mc-Elroy, of Washington, D. C., for the po-sition of Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. Cav., and was a prisoner at Andersonville and other places. He has had editorial control of papers of national reputation for 28 years. A well-known comrade from Brooklyn, N. Y., writes regarding him: "His earnest loyalty to 'we old boys," "His earnest loyalty to 'we old boys, his gritty manner in working for us, his keen editorials, his loving style and his excellent record give us proof that we cannot honor him too much. He stood by us when others fainted. He charged bayonets in behalf of the G. A. R. when others stayed in the bushes 'way back.' I love him for the friends he has made."

Another, a comrade from Ohio, says:

"He learned comradeship in a sure and stern field, where the odor of gunpowder, the music was the blare of trumpets, and the eloquence was the sharp, curt or-ders of the officers, and the answering ap-plause was the deadly volley of the rebel rifle, and shrieking shell; where the lid of a cracker box was a festal board; or in Andersonville, where even crackers and cracker boxes were unknown except in the hungering dreams of famishing patriots. It was picked up on the line of march, where the already overburdened march, where the already overburdened shoulders did not hesitate to lend a helping hand by bearing the belongings of sick or weaker companions, or skirt the road for miles that he might have a drink follows. Washington official society is making faces at the Duchess of Marlborough, who stole a march on it, and visited the warships during the manuvers. Some say she did, and she says she didn't. Prize Money Capt. Chadwick says he was not have recent or suppose, and it threatens her escort or sponsor, and it threatens to become a "Billy Patterson" affair.

The War Department, after debating the matter seriously and deliberately, has evolved from its red-tape entanglement the decision that a retired army officer may wear the uniform of the rank that he held when retired from the service, and he must not mix his dates and wear the trousers of 1865, for instance, the coat of 1880, and the cap of the Spanish war period. Of course retired officers have been wearing the uniform of their rank right along, so nothing is changed.

Miss Ruth Bryan has been visiting the Brides on Capitol Hill. During his brief and not too brilliant Congressional career, Col. William Jennings Bryan and family boarded with the Brides, and it is currently reported that if Mr. Bryan had been elected President, Mr. Bride was to be the Secretary of the Interior. Miss Ruth Bryan has grown into a very charming young lady of 17.

A young colored girl stepped off a mor ing electric car last Friday, and received injuries in falling from which she died. A man is permitted to be a chump and risk his life if he likes in trying to gain five seconds by jumping from moving cars, but there seems to be no good reason why women should fall into the insane habit.

Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, has been ill at his home at Woodmont, on the Sound, ever since he left Washington. He took his departure from Washington before the close of the session, because of his impaired physical condition, and has gone stendily down instead of improving. On Saturday last he was attacked by fainting spells. It is feared that the venerable Senator may not be able to fill his seat during the coming session.

Private Dalzell has suffered a crushing loss in the death of his daughter, Miss Nellie G. Dalzell. She was a bright, efficient young woman, with engaging man-ners, and greatly beloved by her father's comrades and friends. She was a thorough business woman, had studied law with her father, and had been the light of his life for years. She had been for five years a clerk in the Agricultural De-

The people of Washington remember Ruth Cleveland, first child of President Cleveland, as a very squally little girl, with a temper little short of vixenish. When her distinguished parents left the White House, Miss Ruth had grown into a rather pretty, but decidedly spoiled young miss of some six years. Time flies, for just the other day, Miss Ruth Cleveland, while driving her dog cart panied by her grandmother, Mrs. Perrin, got tipped out through the anties of her frightened pony. She calmly climbed back into the cart after it was righted, quieted her horse and drove away, unhurt.

President Roosevelt can't find excite-ment enough in a strenuous life of peace, with himself the center of smashed car-riages and entanglements with trolley cars, and so he is going in for a lion hunt up in Colorado the last of September. The lions are just the "mountain cat" variety, however, and not particularly dangerous

German Minister to Pekin, and formerly German charge in Washington, is in the city. He is not warranted "extra dry," nor is it believed that he is particularly mumm, as he was counted most compan-ionable when here, and he may come back in the capacity of German Ambassador.

There is a class of people in Washington who would hold the sun under the horizon an hour longer on a July morning because an hour longer on a July morning because they can't sleep after sunup. They would have barkless dogs, voiceless cats, birds without song, and market wagons on pneu-matic tires. They have muzzled the news-boys till 8 o'clock, and positively lie in wait to nab the poor little wretches who are trying to earn money for clothes and school books, and turn them over to the police without mercy. They object to the street-car gongs, and the bell in good old St. Peter's tower almost fears to chime the hours. Now some Sybarite has gone into the Police Court asking an injunction against the crow of a rooster! What that fellow ought to have is a home in some vast wilderness out in Sahara, or the sage brush mesas of Utah, or the plains of the Grand Chaco, where the brilliant flowers are without perfume, the bright plumaged
